Grounds For Play To Showcase Educational Outdoor Play Products at NAEYC 2016

CARROLLTON, GA – Grounds For Play, a division of Superior Recreational Products (SRP) and leading manufacturer of outdoor educational play environments, will be attending the 2016 NAEYC Annual Conference in Los Angeles, California from November 2 to November 5.

The annual conference brings together thousands of early childhood professionals, including educators, administrators, and child care center directors. Each year, Grounds For Play inspires trade show attendees with their unique outdoor educational play products.

Visitors to this year's booth (#1322) will have the opportunity to learn how easily nature, dramatic, physical, art, and musical play can be incorporated into their existing outdoor play environment. Additionally, early childhood educators will recognize the social, cognitive, and physical benefits of Grounds For Play products.

Additionally, Grounds For Play will be hosting a meet and greet dinner with William Strader, Ed.D., Facilitator of NAEYC's Student Interest Forum and conference speaker, for select NAEYC attendees. Several spots are still available for this existing event.

"I expect dinner to be fun, filled with laughter and discussion, but most importantly playful. This dinner is a great way for child care professionals to have an intimate environment to discuss play with educationally focused play experts," David Reeves, SRP's Marketing Director, said.

Stop by the Grounds For Play Booth (#1322) to meet the Grounds For Play team and to view featured product such as outdoor art easels, playhouses, musical instruments, and Grounds For Play's new reading boulder.
