

PhoneOwner.com Launches Improved Address Identification System for Mobile Phone Number Searches

New Report View Offers the Owner's Current Address and Extended Address History

PhoneOwner, the US phone directory, has released a new report that expands on the typical range of information related to phone number lookups. This new report includes current and historical records related to each phone number. The report greatly improves a user's ability to verify the address and identity of the entity calling or texting especially for mobile phone numbers that can have long owner histories.

While many reverse phone lookup websites exist, the information available from them often includes only a single record of ownership. This report format made sense for landline phones that were typically held by one owner for very long times ranging up to several decades. However, mobile phone numbers frequently change assigned owners. That limited data format of traditional reverse phone lookup websites greatly reduces the chance of knowing if the records are current and finding the correct phone owner.

Phoneowner.com is the only reverse phone lookup service to offer extended address history for mobile phone numbers in its standard report. These reports include not only the current owner's name, address and birthdate, but also their recent address history, the names of other recent owners of the phone number and frequently an email address whenever those records are available. This level of record detail makes it easier to positively identify and verify the source of the phone call or text – whether an individual person or business, debtor or creditor.

Anyone who receives, or whose family receives, texts or calls from unknown numbers is encouraged to learn the caller's identity and their history in a comprehensive report on PhoneOwner.com today.
