Tom Schiele joins MPS North America as Director of Content Development, ELA

MPS North America is pleased to announce that Tom Schiele has joined as Director of Content Development, ELA. Tom has over 30 years' experience in education, having started his career as a classroom teacher before transitioning to educational publishing. He has headed up editorial departments as Associate Publisher for ELA at National Geographic/Hampton-Brown and VP, Content Development at Wright Group/McGraw-Hill, where he was responsible for creating comprehensive literacy programs for PK-12 and hundreds of supplemental titles. Tom holds a BA in English and an MA in Children's Literature.

Tom Schiele, Director of Content Development, ELA stated:

"I am truly excited that at MPS North America, I am joining a group with such deep and sustaining roots in educational publishing. The wealth of knowledge, range of resources, and commitment to client service is extraordinary. My career in education has taken me many places, and I couldn't be happier that my road has led me here. I look forward to continuing to contribute and to learn at MPS."

Liz Nielsen joins MPS North America as Supervising Content Developer, ELA

MPS North America is also pleased to announce that Liz Nielsen has joined as Supervising Content Developer, ELA. Liz has over eight years' experience in educational publishing for K-12 English Language Arts and seven years' teaching experience. Liz began her career as a high school English teacher, teaching honors advanced-placement English, as well as ACT preparation courses. Liz's experience as editor at Pearson and McGraw-Hill Education has further contributed to a well-rounded background that enables her to create engaging educational materials. Liz holds a BA in the Teaching of English and an MA in Humanities.

Jamie West, SVP, Product Development, MPS North America stated:

"Having both Tom and Liz on board here at MPS North America positions our Content Development group at the forefront of highly-qualified developers for Reading, English Language Arts, and Literature. The sheer caliber of their talent and qualifications lays the groundwork for building strong teams across all grade levels in the K-12 ELA space."
