Restorando Partners with TripAdvisor to in Seven Latin American Countries to Extend Online Restaurant Reservations Services to TripAdvisor Users

Delaware, June 13, 2017 -- Restorando, the leading online restaurant reservation platform in Latin America, and TripAdvisor® (NASDAQ: TRIP), the world's largest travel site, today announced an agreement integrating Restorando's restaurant network into the TripAdvisor desktop website, mobile website and mobile app experiences. Through the Restorando integration, TripAdvisor will facilitate reservations for diners in seven Latin American countries including Argentina, Chile, Colombia, Mexico, Panama, Peru and Uruguay.

Restorando works with over 5,000 restaurants and has seated 20 million diners to date across the Latin American region.

Consumers browsing TripAdvisor restaurant listings now have the option to reserve a table online at thousands of popular restaurants in Latin American cities such as Buenos Aires, Mexico City and Bogota, among others. By clicking the "Reserve" button, consumers are brought to Restorando's online or mobile platforms to quickly and easily book a table.

“We are excited to partner with TripAdvisor to facilitate delightful dining experiences for travelers,” said Frank Martin, Co-Founder & CEO of Restorando. “We strongly believe local restaurateurs and the food they serve are among the best things our region has to offer. Enabling this connection is in our core mission.”

“As one of the world’s largest restaurant sites, we are always looking for ways to make it easier for travelers and locals to find and reserve a table anytime, anywhere,” said Bertrand Jelensperger, Senior Vice President, TripAdvisor Restaurants. “We’re thrilled to extend the reach of our online reservations platform and bring Restorando’s extensive restaurant network to TripAdvisor users.”

Terms and length of the agreement will not be disclosed.
