HARP DESIGN CO. + RAYDOOR COLLABORATION

Clint Harp, well known for his unique hand-crafted furniture designs on HGTV's Fixer Upper, will have a display of his works on the floor, space no: 1646, at Dwell on Design 2017. Clint's vision for his company, Harp Design Co., is a hope that each handmade furniture piece brings people together in a home.

Raydoor, space no: 1746, believes in the transformational power of art, and the fluid potential it has to define a space and inspire the people inside. Their sliding doors permit light to travel through a space, while still providing an operational solution that transforms a room into a more functional and flexible space.

In a collaboration, Harp Design Co. has designed and constructed the furniture and Raydoor has designed and constructed the walls for the VIP I Media Lounge.

KIM LEWIS LAUNCHING HER NEWEST TINY HOME “THE JOSHUA TREE”

Kim Lewis, “The Little Lady with Big Ideas”, is best known as the Lead Designer behind ABC’s Extreme Makeover: Home Edition and founder of Kim Lewis Designs in Austin, TX. Her work has been featured on television networks ABC, HGTV, TLC, National Geographic, Spike TV, Animal Planet, and FYI’s Tiny House Nation. Kim Lewis will present her newest home “The Joshua Tree”, inspired by the famous desert oasis feature.

NEOLITH TINY HOME

The Neolith Tiny Home on wheels is a fully functional rolling tiny house clad in Neolith on the indoors and outdoors and composed of two separate units that complement each other.

The Neolith Tiny House, designed as an experiential home, shows the possibilities of the surfacing material in a variety of applications, including the facade, wall cladding, flooring, countertops, and roof deck in one tiny project.

When it comes to a tiny house, especially one that will travel cross country, weight and durability are major factors. Neolith slabs are thin and therefore very light, will not fade or crack from constant UV exposure or temperature swings, and are virtually indestructible, ideal for a tiny house on the move.
