"I am thrilled to work for a company that breaks down the barriers around cost transparency, while continuing to help employers contain their costs for a more sustainable healthcare model," Passe said.

Based in Portland, Ore., she is heavily involved in advocating for employers through legislative initiatives. She serves as the past-president of the Portland Association of Health Underwriters, the public relations chair of the Oregon Association of Health Underwriters, and a media committee member for the National Association of Health Underwriters.

"Emma is enthusiastic about helping both clients and members succeed," said Trevor Daer, the director of account management at EBMS. "We're looking forward to capitalizing on her passion for people."

Passe has more than nine years of experience in the healthcare insurance industry. Prior to joining EBMS, she most recently worked as a broker and consultant for LaPorte Insurance in Portland. She holds an associate's degree in business administration from Bristol College and is a licensed life and health producer in Oregon.

As a leading third party administrator for self-funded healthcare plans, EBMS architects blueprints for employers' healthcare management strategies. EBMS' benefits experts reduce costs, improve care, and make it easy for their customers by simplifying a traditionally complex industry. Founded in 1980, EBMS has 320 employees who serve more than 200 clients throughout the U.S.
