MSI Global Talent Solutions, a human capital advisory firm that enables companies to improve, grow, and compete through the design and implementation of highly effective human capital strategies, has been ranked 2nd overall in HRO Today magazine's "Baker's Dozen Customer Satisfaction Ratings: Relocation." In addition, once again, MSI ranked 1st in the critical category of "Customer Satisfaction." The Baker's Dozen is an annual survey that rates the major employee relocation service companies offering relocation services worldwide. Survey results are based solely on feedback from HR and procurement professionals within companies that utilize these services.

Elliot Clark, CEO of HRO Today magazine said: "MSI has continued to demonstrate excellence in both the overall relocation sector and in the most important category: Quality of Service - ranking 1st. Given the complexity of relocation and mobility in today's business and regulatory environment, clearly MSI has continued to provide a great service culture and truly partners with their clients to deliver outstanding value, not only in the relocation sector, but also in the broader human capital space."

"MSI's mobility division is a vitally important component of our global talent solutions portfolio, which includes talent consulting, mobilization, and global expansion services," added Timm Runnion, MSI CEO. "Through this portfolio of capabilities, MSI helps organizations align their global talent strategies with their business expansion and growth objectives to ensure that the overarching corporate mission is achieved and that the company experiences continued success."
