Envirosight Releases Water and Wastewater Regulations Poster

New resource provides a clear, concise introduction to U.S. standards and laws.

Randolph, NJ—November 13, 2018— Envirosight, the market leader in underground pipeline inspection equipment, has released an illustrated poster explaining United States water and wastewater regulations. This poster provides a graphical representation of the various laws administering wastewater and wastewater discharge. From enforcement of the Clean Water Act to National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System permits, these complex regulations have significant legal and financial ramifications for communities. However, the teams that manage wastewater systems often have limited insight into the governmental bodies and standards that define their work.

“Following the regulations from the U.S. EPA is important for both individual communities and the nation as a whole,” says Jake Wells, marketing director for Envirosight. “These rules ensure environmental health and foster accountability. But, the system can be confusing. Our poster lays out the laws, the agencies that enforce them, and the acts that made them.”

This new resource assists public utility employees with understanding the agencies and regulations that oversee essential infrastructure. The poster is available to the public free of charge and can be requested at <http://inbound.envirosight.com/water-and-wastewater-regulations-poster>. It was created as part of Envirosight’s commitment to provide resources to support compliance and improvements across the water and wastewater industry.
