SUSTAINABILITY

Fourthwear™ underwear is made from 85% Recycled Polyester and 15% Spandex, milled in China and distributed through a California wholesaler. According to the EPA, plastic accounts for 12% of the total amount of waste we produce. By using recycled PET plastic (the kind that is used in plastic beverage bottles), we are taking steps to reduce air, water, and ground pollution.

Recycled polyester also helps us save our natural resources (including water!) along with saving energy in the production process and lowering greenhouse gas emissions and the use of chemicals.

SIZING: Everybody's body changes at a different rate and in different ways after the birth of a child. We specifically chose extra stretchy fabric to accommodate and designed our product for group sizing and options for alternative wear to ensure that you can buy Fourthwear™ underwear before giving birth and know that it will still deliver a comfortable fit experience.

ABOUT NYSSA:

We created Nyssa after feeling frustrated and let down by the few resources and products available to support us during our Fourth Trimester recoveries. New parenthood can be intense and identity shattering. We want to have an honest, open dialogue about what really goes down while also providing birthing parents with empathetically-designed products that make care and comfort a priority
