Overview of Dog Training Bells for Door

What are They?

Dog door bells for potty training are pretty self-explanatory, but it can be helpful to know exactly what they are, what their use is, and what an effective training tool they can be. Essentially, this tool is a set of hanging bells for dogs to use to alert their owner(s) that they need to go outside to use the restroom. If used correctly, the dog bells will serve as a subtle but obvious and audible sound that alerts you to take your dog outside. Most people who have incorporated this training tool into their home have exclaimed that the sound of the potty bells ringing is much better than the silent “potty stare” from your dog and, without a doubt, much better than stumbling upon a smelly accident inside the house.

How Are They Used?

The dog door bells are used to create an object for your dog to touch that sends a signal to their owner(s) that they need to go potty. The Athenas Pets bells hang from all doorknobs and can be adjusted for height with two separate clips on the nylon strap. Many dogs can pick up on this right away with little or no training required. However, some dogs may require a little more work in order to use the potty training bells. Initially, you will use the bells for training, but long-term, the bells will become a part of your dog’s daily life when they need to use the bathroom. For this reason, you should make sure you choose potty training bells that are made of high-quality material that will last so you don’t have to replace them periodically.

Can All Dogs Use Dog Bells for Potty Training?

The short answer is YES! Dog door bells are a perfect potty training tool for ALL DOG BREEDS: small, medium, large, old, or young. Although this tool will work with all dogs, some admittedly will require slightly more training than others. All in all, any dog will pick up rather quickly on how to use the dog bells.

How Long Will Training Take?

The great thing about using dog bells for potty training is that there is not much training required! Many potty training bell users say that just by ringing it themselves every time they take their dog out to do their business that their dog picks up on its function. In a situation like this where a dog is a quick learner, it could take less than a week before your dog is ringing the hanging bells when they need to be relieved. For pups that are either stubborn or need extra attention when training, the whole process shouldn’t take more than one month.
