

Miami Artist Stephen Gamson creates artwork “Playing it Safe” in recognition of Nuvo Suites hospital donation campaign.

Miami, Florida (September 14, 2020) - Nuvo Suites is proud to be part of Sweetwater and Doral communities and now during the outbreak of Coronavirus has been welcoming displaced residents and visitors, healthcare and medical professionals, front-line responders, law enforcement and several others that are displaced during the crisis. Nuvo Suites is actively providing extended stay accommodations for Miami hospitals for its medical staff that are in need.

“We are so thankful to Nuvo Suites for their commitment to Jackson's nurses, doctors, and other front line caregivers, by creating a safe space for all of them who are working tirelessly during this pandemic,” said Flavia Llizo, Executive Vice President, Chief Development Officer for Jackson Health Foundation “We are very grateful to everyone in the community for their continued support during these difficult times.”

“As an Artist, it brings me great pleasure to share my work with the community, especially during these trying times. I am proud to collaborate with Nuvo Suites in their effort to support these great hospitals and all those individuals who are working heroically to save lives during the Covid-19 pandemic,” said Stephen Gamson, Artist. Limited edition archival prints will be provided as a donation to local hospitals that have received much needed extended stays for first responders to honor their commitment to our healthcare community.

Nuvo Suites is on the forefront of ensuring every precaution to give our guests and staff the utmost protection in a safe and secure extended stay environment.

“We appreciate having local Miami Artist Stephen Gamson commemorate with this special artwork as for our appreciation to the local hospitals and to our community. Nuvo Suites realizes the importance for providing essential lodging during the Coronavirus crisis and has strived to provide a safe and secure extended stay for all our guests,” said Chuck Castiglia, General Manager, Nuvo Suites.
