AMERISURE ANNOUNCES AMJED AL-ZOUBI AS CHIEF INFORMATION OFFICER

FARMINGTON HILLS, Mich., November 3, 2020 — Amerisure is pleased to announce Amjed Al-Zoubi's promotion to Chief Information Officer. In this role, Al-Zoubi will join the company's strategic leadership team and will report to Greg Crabb, Amerisure's President and Chief Executive Officer.

Al-Zoubi will retain leadership responsibility for the Information Technology (IT) department and will assume responsibility for the Business Process and Portfolio Management Office and Innovation team. He also will continue to lead the organization's Agility Practice Group, helping Amerisure continue to succeed during rapid industry change.

Amjed Al-Zoubi, Chief Information Officer, Amerisure

“Since joining Amerisure, Amjed has been instrumental in the advancement of the company's technology strategy and in leading the Agility Practice Group to support Amerisure's agile transformation,” said Crabb. “His wealth of relevant experience and strategic leadership will position Amerisure for continued success through technology, innovation and agility.”

Al-Zoubi joined Amerisure in 2018 as Vice President of Application Systems, where he led the execution of the IT applications architecture roadmap. He most recently served as Chief Technology Officer, with overall leadership responsibilities for the IT department, including application development, business intelligence, infrastructure and security.

Prior to joining Amerisure, Al-Zoubi served as the IT Director at USAA Life Company and, before that, CUNA Mutual Group.

Al-Zoubi earned a bachelor's degree in chemical engineering from the University of Michigan and a Master of Business Administration from the Wisconsin School of Business.
