JBS Custom Software Solutions has been delivering leading-edge custom software and application-based solutions for over 21 years. From modernizing existing systems, building new enterprise applications, digitalizing processes, and developing innovative mobile applications, our engineers have mastered architecting elegant solutions to the most complex challenges. Our experience and expertise span the entire product lifecycle from ideation and conception to strategy, implementation and delivery.

Our success is closely tied to our unique approach. We recruit only the most senior software engineers skilled working in a U.S.-based remote environment who first get to know your business, deeply understand what drives your business success, and deliver to that. This caliber of technical talent and business acumen allows us to produce better solutions at faster delivery rates for a faster return on your investment.

OUR UNIQUENESS

Seasoned senior-only technical talent

Our rigorous hiring process allows us to attract the best senior level architects, engineers, developers and project leaders that have critical thinking, strong leadership skills and a ton of experience. Expect responsiveness, transparency, and the highest level of quality possible on each and every project.

Seamlessly integrate with your team

Our engineers can be your team if you do not have one or can integrate with your existing team if you do. With existing teams we use a structure we call “high velocity software development team”, maximizing productivity for your existing team while integrating closely to increase effectiveness and return on investment.

100% U.S.-based team

You can't afford delays or sub-par systems created by junior or offshore teams. That's why we exclusively hire U.S.-based, industry-leading technology experts across all disciplines and platforms. For two decades we have been working remotely across the U.S. with proven processes in place to maximize partnerships.
