FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Black-led FindWritersOnline.com opens equity crowdfunding campaign to the public

Press release

Upper Marlboro, Maryland, 03/18/2021 — Black-led startup Find Writers Online has recently launched an equity crowdfunding campaign on the Wefunder platform and opened it to the public. “The hope is that ‘The Crowd’ will band together and support my startup which solves specific problems that other businesses have with acquiring quality written content and copywriting.” says its founder Jason Moore.

Find Writers Online is an Internet business-to-business marketplace that connects businesses with vetted/remote freelance writers. The startup has already raised several hundreds of dollars from a small family and friends round and leadership hopes that by opening the campaign to the public, it will provide the necessary resources needed to grow and sustain the business.

According to a recently published report by Crunchbase, Black and other non-majority founders have not received as much funding to sustain their businesses using traditional Venture Capital channels as compared to other groups. With the latest SEC laws loosening restrictions on how startups can raise funds publicly, it could make it easier for startups like Find Writers Online to obtain the necessary resources to accelerate growth
