U.S. Baseball Academy Announces New Winter Camp Sessions for Youth Players Nationwide

U.S. Baseball Academy continues to help shape young athletes and youth sports through their new lineup of baseball camps this winter. From game play strategy to nutrition and overall health and fitness, these camps will help young players stand out amongst their competition.

USBA has partnered with professional trainers and coaches for a professional experience this winter season. These camps are in high demand and registration is on a first come/first serve basis. Find the location near you below and inspire the players in your life to play like a pro.

Columbia Basin College – Pasco, WA

Columbia Basin College head coach Stefan McGovern will direct this camp in conjunction with U.S. Baseball Academy. Players ages 5-18 will enjoy professional instruction with a low player-coach ratio, ensuring each player receives the attention their game deserves.

Other highlights include high-level off-season training, and sessions that are both age- and skill-specific.

Del Norte High School – Albuquerque, NM

Players will learn and practice hitting, pitching, catching, fielding, and baserunning from head coach Leandre Lovato this winter. Between a low player/coach ratio and age- and skill-specific sessions, there's something at this camp for every player.

Highlights include special programs for hitting, pitching, fielding, and baserunning, with program discounts for players enrolled in more than one program.
