Amerisure Named a “Best-in-Class Employer” by Gallagher Benefits Strategy & Benchmarking Survey

FARMINGTON HILLS, Mich., May 17, 2022 — After scoring in the top 25 percent of midsize employers participating in Gallagher’s 2021 Benefits Strategy & Benchmarking Survey, Amerisure is pleased to share it has been recognized by Gallagher as a Best-in-Class employer.

The Best-in-Class Benchmarking Analysis highlights statistically significant attributes of top-performing midsize and large employers. Data from Gallagher’s 2021 Benefits Strategy & Benchmarking Survey was interpreted to identify participants that excel in optimizing employee and organizational wellbeing.

“Amerisure is strongly committed to the wellbeing of its employees,” said Erin Buddie, Amerisure’s vice president of human resources. “Earning this esteemed recognition from Gallagher, which underscores the continual efforts and enhancements within Amerisure’s talent and employee culture objectives, also provides the added benefit of allowing our employees to be proud of their workplace community.”

The survey assigned points based on each company’s performance in planning horizons for benefits and compensation; extent of well-being strategy; full-time employee turnover rate; completion of a workforce engagement survey; use of an HR technology strategy and its level of sophistication; health plan premium increases/decreases at most recent renewal; and use of a communication strategy.

“Amerisure takes a proactive and structured approach to planning, developing and implementing comprehensive benefits and human resources programs, which is essential in today’s war for talent,” said William F. Ziebell, CEO of Gallagher’s benefits & HR consulting division. “In doing so, Amerisure is able to set its employee value proposition apart from the competition, which allows them to better attract, reward and retain their talent.”
