

THE 941 PROJECT<sup>POWERED BY CAREERCIRCLE</sup>

Join the mission to connect 941 candidates with new jobs this year.

After being away from the NBA for 941 days, Klay Thompson wants to support all of those fighting for their comeback through The 941 Project. The Thompson Family Foundation has created a separate charter dedicated to helping those who have been dealt a tough hand in life with the resources to fight for a better education and a better job while supporting them through the mental and physical challenges that can come with those circumstances. The explicit goal of the project is to help 941 individuals get re-skilled and gain access to great jobs as they take on their own "return to work" journeys.

"I am forever thankful for the support so many have given me over the 941 days I worked to get back on the court...During this time, I developed a new appreciation for just how hard it is to overcome major life challenges and the difficulty many people face when they are out of work and trying to find their way back."

- Klay Thompson

Our Why: Equity in Action

Implementing DE&I strategies requires leadership to tackle several efforts simultaneously, like diversifying talent funnels, providing training resources, and vetting job seekers. CareerCircle helps employers develop end-to-end talent pipelines and access new candidates to overcome the traditional barriers of internal staffing. We also work to dissolve the myth that upskilled equals unskilled by connecting job seekers with trainings that enable them to transition into new roles or reenter the workforce.
