Vanguard Properties Names Nina Dosanjh, A nationally recognized industry leader as Chief Technology & Strategy Officer

San Francisco, California | July 19, 2022

SAN FRANCISCO Vanguard Properties, San Francisco's leading independent locally-owned real estate firms, today named Nina Dosanjh as Chief Technology & Strategy Officer. The appointment is part of the firm's continued commitment to providing its agents and clients with the highest level of service possible.

"Nina joined our firm over five years ago, and in that time, has served in multiple roles and has continued to show an incredible commitment to our core values and vision," said James Nunemacher, CEO of Vanguard Properties. In this new position, Nina's in-depth real estate knowledge and industry expertise will bring a continued enhancement of the company's technical long term strategies"

In her new role, Dosanjh will be responsible for formulating, facilitating and communicating the organization's strategic initiatives and future goals. She will be tasked with the continued enhancement of the company's technical infrastructure and developing related long term strategies for the firm and its more than 500 agents, managers and administrative staff in the East Bay, San Francisco, Marin, Sonoma, and Napa counties.

"I'm proud to be working with a firm that understands and embraces the power of data and its importance to help drive long-term business growth," said Dosanjh " I look forward to creating technical and operational efficiencies that support our agents and our clients."

For over a decade, Dosanjh has been a strong leader within the real estate space and brings a clear and bold vision and a voice to the industry and to Vanguard Properties.
