OA Injectables Market

Moderate to severe osteoarthritis pain affects millions of patients annually. Frequently, this condition has been treated with hyaluronic acid injections. However, recent research findings have brought the effectiveness of these injections under compelling scrutiny. In response, biotechnology and pharmaceutical companies are answering the call by developing next generation alternatives leveraging a wide array of technologies including, human tissues, cell therapies, gene therapies and regenerative medicine solutions. Collectively, the potential market opportunity for these products exceeds $10B annually in the United States alone.

SmartTRAK is offering a new OA Injectables solution designed to provide subscribers with a competitive edge in this growing market. Our industry experts are actively monitoring 60+ companies developing novel drug and biologic solutions.

Expert insights curated to support and empower:
