

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

Cold Core Group Announces Opening of Branch Office in North Carolina
New Office Supports Continued Growth and Strong Momentum

RALEIGH, North Carolina. (November 9, 2022) – Cold Core Group, the parent company of Summit Refrigeration and All Temp Refrigeration, recently opened a branch office in Raleigh, North Carolina. Both All Temp and Summit are industry-leading industrial refrigeration service providers, with established customer relationships and strong market recognition. The Cold Core Group serves as a platform to leverage the collective capabilities of these operating companies to deliver more service, support, and resources to its customers.

This expansion is yet another development to support the continued growth and strong momentum that All Temp Refrigeration and Summit Refrigeration have been experiencing. This is the second branch office opened this year, as Summit Refrigeration expanded to Louisville, Kentucky back in May. Since its opening less than six months ago, the Kentucky branch has experienced tremendous growth and success. The Raleigh branch office and surrounding markets share many of the same characteristics that have been drivers behind the early and fast success for the Kentucky branch office.

“Both All Temp and Summit have many long-term customers, with plants and facilities in North Carolina and the surrounding areas. For years, those customers have been asking if we could expand to support the plants and facilities in this region. Additionally, there is a huge market there – from pharmaceutical companies in the research triangle, to food processing plants throughout the region, there is no shortage of customers needing industrial refrigeration services.”, stated Brian Joyner, Co-founder of All Temp and EVP Business Development of Cold Core Group.

Through its local presence, and the shared resources of Cold Core Group operating companies, this North Carolina office will provide a comprehensive suite of industrial refrigeration capabilities including on-call service, maintenance, design, engineering, and construction. To help support the launch of the office, Cold Core Group has hired a team of local service technicians and appointed a long-time Summit Refrigeration team member and industry veteran, Jeff Bull, as the Branch Manager.

"This presents a great opportunity for us to continue our impressive growth. We have the right team, capabilities, and experience to support current and prospective customers in this region. Our ability to share resources between All Temp and Summit as Cold Core operating divisions, is compelling – we have really hit the ground running here in North Carolina.”, added Jeff Bull, Branch Manager of the Cold Core Group’s North Carolina office.

This expansion extends the overall reach of the Cold Core Group and its operating companies. With offices now in Wisconsin, Iowa, Kentucky, North Carolina and a growing presence in Northwest Arkansas, the Cold Core Group has expansive geographic coverage to efficiently support their customers.

“The opening of this North Carolina office not only meets a regional need, but also aligns strategically with the other Cold Core group locations. Our various office locations, and the respective overlap of service areas provides us with tons of synergies resulting in great value for our customers. We have expansive presence in both central and eastern United States – all areas with a heavy need for industrial refrigeration services. Between All Temp, Summit and the Cold Core Group platform, we are a super-regional provider with national reach.”, commented Jim Kopczynski, the CEO of Cold Core Group.

The Cold Core Group family of operating companies – All Temp Refrigeration and Summit Refrigeration - provides the following industrial refrigeration services:

- Engineering and Design
