HiringThing Awarded Spring 2023 High Performer by G2

HiringThing users give the applicant tracking system high scores for usability, customer support, and the ability to customize the platform to meet their needs.

5/23/23 –HiringThing, the premier private label applicant tracking system, is honored to receive the G2 Spring 2023 High Performer award.

"This award means a lot to us because it's not one we apply or lobby for—our customers and end users gave us this award by leaving glowing reviews on G2," said Product Manager Colette Luke. "As a product-led company always thinking of ways to put the customer experience first, we couldn't be happier."

G2's High Performer Award is based on data and reviews provided by ATS users, and the G2 reviews reflect Luke's "glowing" descriptor, frequently calling out HIringThing's useability and customizations.

"Flexible, easy-to-use solutions," wrote Director Lyndsey F. "We've been able to customize the Hiring Thing platform to meet all of our needs. Best of all, the platform is cost-effective for us and easy and intuitive for the end user. They also have great support, and I love the chat option for help with issues and questions. We also use the HiringThing white label to share our workflows and processes with other companies in our industry."

"The tech world is changing rapidly," said HiringThing CEO and founder Joshua Siler, "especially with the advent of AI—which we've just incorporated into the platform courtesy of our AI-Enabled Job Descriptions. If we continue providing partners and end users with consistently innovative and user-friendly recruiting software in this rapidly evolving tech world, we've done our jobs."

"Rankings on G2 reports are based on data provided to us by real software buyers," said Sara Rossio, Chief Product Officer at G2. "Potential buyers know they can trust these insights when researching and selecting software because they're rooted in vetted, verified, and authentic reviews."
